he love story of Clifford Cheng and Jacqueline Nicole Ng was seven years in the making. Classmates in college, Cliff and Jacky often bumped into each other, until their friendship developed into a budding affection. After college, they left for the U.S. to pursue their respective interests. Jacky's passion for cooking led her to a degree and work in restaurant management. Cliff earned a management and marketing degree, and gained work experience before eventually completing his MBA. All the while, they stayed in close proximity until they were ready to take the next step.

In November of last year, they took that step together down the aisle of Don Bosco Church in Makati. Jacky dazzled family and friends in her Renée Salud gown while Cliff appeared striking as ever in his Calvin Klein suit. Collaborating with Rita Neri Events Planner, the couple chose a Japonaiserie-themed reception to showcase their shared love for Japanese and French art, culture, and cuisine. The reception venue at the Le Pavillon Metropolitan Park was decorated with pink, salmon, peach, and gunmetal gray colors.

This unique motif inspired Japanese-themed tables with edible centerpieces of mochi, while French-themed tables featured macarons. Two Baicapture photobooths were set up, one Japanese and one French, to produce magnetic photo souvenirs for their guests. Even their wedding dance featured a faux waltz and a semi-traditional Japanese dance before ending in a modern style.
